

VICOR Distributed Capture

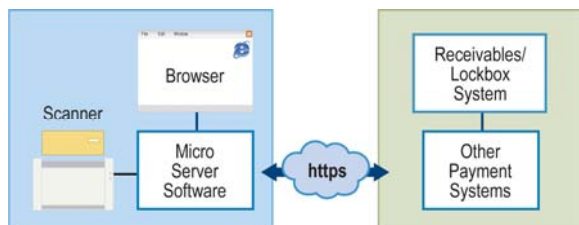

Capture complex data anywhere

Would you like to take advantage of technology that allows you to electronically capture checks remotely? Are you interested in imaging checks and associated payment documents close to their source of origination for seamless integration into a central lockbox site?

- With a thin client and rapid installation process, VICOR Distributed Capture enables remote capture of complex payment information, including checks, full-page invoices, instructions, and envelopes.

LOCAL CAPTURE, CENTRAL PROCESSING

Checks can now be truncated at a variety of presentment points -- including local processing sites, bank branches, a corporate customer's office environment, or a remote outsourced operation -- and fed to a central processing site for rapid settlement. Engineered to work with any TWAIN scanner, VICOR Distributed Capture uses minimal software and is easily and rapidly installed through an intuitive, browser-based user interface.

Once payment images are captured locally, they are transmitted via a secure Internet connection to a Distributed Capture Server located at the financial institution's central processing site.

Distributed Capture interfaces to any payment processing system such as VICOR's Receivables

Information Delivery System (RIDS), other lockbox systems/receivables applications, enterprise archives, image exchange networks, and check processing systems.

REAPING MULTIPLE BENEFITS

When transactions are captured and converted to electronic images as early as possible within the payment cycle, multiple efficiencies are gained:

- Speeds Processing Time -- Same-day delivery of electronic deposits accelerates corporate funds availability
- Meets Regional Customer Requirements -- Allows customers outside the operational footprint to capture items in their corporate environment
- Creates a Flexible Capture Environment -- Creates a hub-and-spoke operation where customers deposit their receivables transaction from their corporate offices
- Controls Processing Expenses -- Centralizes data processing functions and reduces paper handling procedures
- Eliminates Courier Fees -- With VICOR Distributed Capture, payment information that was formerly sent via overnight courier can now be captured at the point of presentment. Courier and handling costs are saved and receivables information is provided sooner
